In The Name of God, Most Gracious, Most Merciful

"All praise is due to God Who guided us to this, and we would not have found the way had it not been that God had guided us."¹

Preface: Based on the truth contained in these epistles, with which readers will be intimately acquainted, with God's assistance they will succeed in correcting all their inward and outward defects and faults. They will even, through most inclusive and simple methods, attain extensive access to good guidance toward individuals and society.

Mankind succeeds in removing his natural, traditional, or social wickedness when he identifies the root cause as promoting evil, and restrains it. He should, contrarily, efficiently strengthen the root cause for goodness and seek to intensify it. Indeed we will not succeed in this process unless we methodologically understand the mentioned truths.

Therefore, the noble majesties—the faithful, researching and scrutinizing philosophers, on the basis of 6666 verses of the intact Quran of Islam and on the Hadith of apostle Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him, have proven man's body to consist of two elements, the soul and the ego. They have considered the Heart as the steering wheel, or computer, of the body. They have understood the functions of angelic inspirations and satanic temptations on the heart by using, both, the brain's storage department and the heart's cells, toward good or evil.

They have stated that the findings of these truths are founded on the seven following conceptual and concrete topics:

First - The Soul: The human body contains its vital soul. As long as it remains in the body, all molecules and tissues will be precisely active for more than a hundred years and will not decay, while the five senses along with other senses perform their tasks. Once the soul departs from the body, the body instantaneously loses all sensory perception. Within three to seven days, the body will decay and decompose. Even the ownership of properties, social relationships, along with other human qualities, are a blessing of the soul's presence in the body.

Second - The Ego: Physically, the ego has extensive potential in restoring the body's wasted molecules and in the actual growth of the body. Since the ego's creation innately has been achieved from the essence of the earth, as a result man consumes all kinds of earthly products in one way or the other, in whatever forms possible, though they may be fatal like opium, hot like pepper, or bitter like tobacco. However, the invisible nourishment of the ego consists of selfishness, unsuitable greed and taking pride in dress, appearance and lodging, and other immoralities.

Third - The Angel or the Cooperator of the Soul: The motive behind the angelic power is such that the greater spiritual power one attains, the more angelic inspirations dominate the person. The evidence is such that nothing improper is ever seen from such a person's speech or deeds, rather goodwill and benevolence to friends and strangers alike.

Forth - The Devil or the Cooperator of the Ego: At the opposite end, if the ego is fortified, all such people's sayings and actions are based on satanic disguises, and pivot on the axis of personal gains. The achieving of corrupt, egoistic and sensual demands becomes their ultimate goal in life. The fulfillment of these malicious desires, from their prospective, seemingly, cause others insignificant distress, frustration and even devastation.

Fifth - The Heart: The location of action for both powers of the soul and the ego, or the Angel and the Devil, respectively, is the Heart, the Steering Wheel or Computer of the body.

Sixth - The Brain: It is the archive, or the conservatory, of the Body's senses, and anything concerning the heart and heart's executions. Both the Angel and the Devil use it making their good or bad suggestions effective on man, intensifying their good or evil actions.

In brief, the Body consists of two elements—the soul and the ego, and the two motives of good or evil called the Angel and the Devil, according to the Qur'anic verses and the Hadith of Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings of God be upon him. There are two Mechanisms of Action, the Heart and Brain, each in turn is a Director and Assistant to the body. Under such circumstances, obviously, the spiritual and egoistic powers have as well their exclusive sources of growth.

Seventh - Nourishment of the Soul and Ego: The body acquires energy from a wide range of foods and drink etc. In a similar manner, the soul is fortified and acquires excellent condition through different kinds of worship and good deeds. There is no need to mention the body's selection and range of nutrition as apparent as it is. It would not be irrelevant however, to present a summary of the soul's variety of nutrition.

The benevolence that strengthens the soul is summarized into two elements.

- 1) Constrained Worship: It is undertaken by religious jurisprudence.²
- 2) Unconstrained Worship: It is defined as the remembrance³ of Glorious God and observing the world's exhibition, seeing Glorious Artificer's Magnificence and Perfection through artifacts, and to translate these to faith in the heart. This should lead to estates of humbleness and gratitude, and result in serving God's creatures to please Him, being intent on uplifting God's word, exercising patience when confronted with hardships and suffering in the path to Truth, and having resolute and devout reliance in God Almighty. This is the fundamental nourishment of the soul.

These epistles, with God's help, are arranged merely for the development of spiritual powers, intellectually based on excellent and logical philosophy. Through simple ways, these epistles will fortify your faith and spirituality such that each minute's engagement with them is equivalent to a year of worship. An hour of it can compete with sixty years of accepted worship, according to the sincere reporter, peace and blessings of God be upon him.

Make an effort to produce a draft of the truths as related to each chapter's subject matter that is poured into your heart as a result of intensive reading and study of these epistles. Then present your draft to the instructors of this subject.

Frequently coming across such ideas is the first indication of greatness beginning to appear in your spiritual ascent. Gradually, through God Almighty's will and help, the discovery of the Fourth Dimension⁴ will become accessible.

Therefore, it is necessary for the followers of the intact Qur'an of Islam to uninterruptedly read all epistles and books containing these truths, so that they may find the truth as quickly as possible.

What the Sober Carefree (the Heedless Ones) Say to the Carefree Sober (the Believers)

In response to the theory that this order has come into being spontaneously and without a Creator, just think deeply about the following awakening and enlightening questions; to which, until the instant of resurrection, no one will ever be able to respond. You clearly know, and it is as a whole an undeniable truth, that everything we see in our surroundings is only a result of the two artificing hands of Almighty God, and His vicegerent,⁵ man.

Namely, only human offspring can build the necessary equipment and tools from what the Almighty Sacred Being has prepared for us in the form of natural resources left in our control. These resources were created for our use.

First: Why is this mastery not available to such animals as elephants, camels, horses, etc., which are many times stronger than we are? Contemplate that if these functions were linked to the power of the brain, then the brains of most animals would quantitatively supersede that of humans.

Second: According to materialists, the creative power of matter can create all varieties of animals, trees, rocks, plants and finally the entire universe.

If this claim were true, could nature at least recreate the generations of animals that humans or wild animals have destroyed throughout the centuries? Scientists currently hold their skeletons, posing likewise hundreds of other questions. No, never.

It is indisputable that if nature had the power to create things that possess perfect order, then it should still possess it, and even better than the original. Rather, it should be able to recreate. To shed light on this truth, humans produce millions of something once the prototype is there.

Nature should be able to recreate those annihilated figures were it, as some say, the maker and producer of this universe which possesses this entire structured order. But no, it could never do so.

This creative power accredited to nature should bring forth creations hundreds of times better and more efficient than the prototypes, based on the principle of evolution that the materialists have included in their four principles. But this is impossible.

Third: Let's ask the second artificer, man, about the products manufactured by his hands. Has anyone ever seen anything such as a needle somewhere in the world, which was made by itself, of which millions of types and samples exist? Has it been without mechanical measurements or technical order? Has anyone ever found a needle to be without a manufacturer? The answer is no.

While his hands' manufacture can never be without a maker, though the raw material used to manufacture it is abundant and accessible everywhere, then which healthy wisdom and understanding could ever accept that this ordered system with all its stupefying qualities and specialties, which, since discovery, has perplexed and deeply astonished some scientists by the Greatness and Glory of the Almighty God could ever exist without Creator and Artificer?

We now come back to studying some of the favors and free gifts that Glorious He has given and continues to give us regularly and freely.

Perceiving the Perfection and Glory of the Exalted Creator, besides feeling thankful, are examples of these aforementioned free and regular gifts and favors.

We gain supply of this complete, energy-filled, powerful spiritual nourishment to strengthen our faith and spirit.

Besides, we shall clearly know that the misconception associated with nature is an illusion created by unbelievers in order to beguile some miserable persons intent on political gains. Otherwise, all that exists is a product of the imperceptible Hand of power of Exalted Him. A minute of such study is equivalent to a year of worship according to the Messenger, peace and blessings of God be upon him. It establishes the shortest communication's path of the servant to God. This is the strongest energy for charging the battery of faith and it is better than all other forms of unconstrained worship.

One Hour of Contemplation Surpasses Sixty years Of Worship

In the subsequent matters, we draw your attention in such a way to the truths and manners of creatures coming into existence that, on the one hand, we grasp the essential favor of healthy organs that are created under the control of the Exalted Unique Being. On the other hand, it will fully become evident that if it were not for the supervision of the Sole Creator, as in the verse:

“Then He fashioned him in due proportion,”⁶ and if we were created by chance or spontaneously, we would definitely suffer the deficiencies described in the following discussion.

In the name of God, who opened the door of nothingness, and from it created billions of types of creatures, living, non-living and so forth, with incredible and rare forms and sorts, we start with the following matters. What would we have been if Almighty God had not brought us out of that nothingness, a state of non-existence, to create us in the best shape and figure?

"We have indeed created man in the best of molds."⁷

If Divine Will was to create us, then ponder! What would we have done, had we been created in the category of inanimate entities, such as rocks, sand, mines, trees, fruits, grains, vegetables, and thousands of other like objects.

Let us submit that He had intended to create us as living entities.

What if we were created in the category of thousands of non-human organisms, on land or in the seas, such as microbes, mosquitoes and, at the very most, sheep, horses, goats, elephants or some birds or in the form of some other creatures? What would we have been then?

After all why O' man! Vicegerent of the Almighty Lord of the earth and heavens, don't you ponder that before your creation, the Exalted Most Gracious and Most Merciful had bestowed all these Favors unto you?!

Let us acknowledge that His Will was to create our selves in the form of mankind! If Almighty God had created us amongst false religions, corrupt superstitious customs like fire-worshipping, Zoroasterism, and other doctrines, or even within the category of atheism and the denial of His Existence, what would have happened?

Why don't you reflect deeply, O Muslim! O Participant! in the militant⁸ school of God of earth and time? What right did we have over Him that He eternally placed His Grace, unrequested, upon us?

Now if we do something for His Happiness, how would He ever waste it!

⁶ quotation from the holy Quran, Chapter sajda (prostration, verse 9)

⁷ Quran Chapter 95 Teen (the Fig), verse 4)

⁸ militant, the struggle against ego and Satan

If Almighty God had not endorsed us and given the aptitude to acquire knowledge, how could we ever come to perceive this very text and its resulting secrets and enlightenment? We should ponder! Let us look at the following.

In the process of coming from non-existence to our fathers' loins, and from there to our mothers' wombs millions of sperm cells like us from one of which we were created, the rest were eliminated.

If Almighty God had eliminated and placed us in the line with those subject to extinction, what would have happened?

If Exalted God had created us in the womb with an ugly appearance, or with vision or other organs handicapped, what would have then happened?

If Almighty God had not taken the baby out automatically, with His compassion and beneficence from his mother's womb, despite its size and disproportionality at the "exit", and man were to take it out himself through an incision, would any woman be willing to have this done to her? If it were at all possible, there would be much hardship, and who would be capable of bearing this difficulty?

If we were eliminated, like other children of our age, through different diseases, made paralyzed, powerless, illiterate or ignorant, what would have then happened?

If Almighty God had not bestowed upon us to be raised in the warm bosom of our parents, or due to other mishaps we would have been desperate to do servitude to others' homes, what would have happened then?

If either the father or the mother goes away, and Almighty God had not turned our relatives and other people compassionate to guard us, take care of us and coach us toward higher education, how could we ever come to access this jewel-box of the secrets of the world of truth and reality, the purity of Islam and its jurisprudence? What would have happened then?

A lot of thanksgiving is needed!

What if the nerves in our body were not spread out like telephone lines? How many times a day would we have suffered numerous wounds from bits of rocks, wood, nails, needles, and other objects? Before we notice what is happening, the wounds might become black and decay. What would have happened under those circumstances?

If Almighty God had not given us memory, whether of things or words told to us, what would we use to recall and what portion would we recall when trying to relate. Taking and giving in communication would then come to a complete halt, and each person would have to encounter the other personally in order to be able to talk to him.

What If Almighty God had provided us with a limited intellect such as He has provided the animals, under the name of instinct, to know only how to reproduce, being vigil of enemies with some other limited characteristics, but no more than this? What would we have been and what could we have done in such a case? Verily, in this case, we would have been big monkeys in the woods or in the mountains or in the desert that our generation would have been completely extinct by now due to other animals' strikes such as lions, tigers and others?

If Almighty God had not oiled consistently the body and head's hair and given them unbreakable form, it would be necessary that we oil them ourselves, so that they would not break. What a situation! What kind of people would be employed in this kind of work, all trying to preserve personal beauty, but with what difficulty!

If Exalted God had made human body hairy like that of a sheep, what would have happened then?

If Almighty God had not automated human hair growth appropriately and within measure, the growing of each hair would be a task, which would fall on our shoulders. What would have happened and what would we have done under that circumstance, especially if we were unable to pull?

If Almighty God had caused the hair of the eyelid, eyebrows, and body to consistently grow like the beard, head and other organs, would we not be facing inconvenience pertaining to their cutting, styling and fashioning?

If Almighty God had not endowed humans with hair on his eyelids and eyebrows, do you know how awful the most beautiful Human would look like?

If the hair on the eyelid or eyebrow were breakable, needing to be oiled with regular or some standard oil, and forgotten about, they would simply break and fall. What situation and what an appearance we would have had!

If Almighty God had not created the inner lens in the eye that enlarges the object's image, or if we could see only as big as the pupils we have; how many hours would we spend rotating our head so that we could scan a one meter spot. How could we have managed then?

What if Almighty God had not automated a required, consistent wetness in our eyes, and our eyelids did not automatically blink? Could you imagine in that case what would have happened and what would we have done? Well, each individual would always have needed clean cotton and q-tips in order to clean one's or friends each other's eyes whenever these became unclear and dark from the environment and work. In this case, superb eye cleaners would be needed, since inexperience could cause wounds to the eyes or blindness.

What if there were nobody available in the valleys or deserts, how would eyes have been cleaned? Or, what if we had to wait for someone to clean our eyes so that we could see our way. There are expert ear-cleaners in some countries that have special dress and instruments. But the eyes are much more indispensable and their cleaning is more delicate.

If Almighty God had not made human eyes powerful and energetic vis-a-vis sunlight, and we were like bats in our holes during the day, coming out only at night, what would our condition have been like?

If Almighty God had given us only one eye and located that on top of our head, how would it have been then and how difficult it would have been to see our way and to work!

If Almighty God had not made our nose and ears from cartilage, can you see that every night our ears and nose would be broken? We may have had to sleep on our backs making sure not to turn sideways or face least our ear or nose broke.

If Almighty God had made our hearing sense so weak as to prevent us from hearing the talker who does not speak directly in the ear, what then, and how would our conditions be?

If Almighty God had not grown nasal hair, imagine our breathing dust and dirt, or if it were too thick, what difficulty we would face if gland secretions had stuck all the hairs together; It would have stopped the breathing passages altogether.

If Almighty God had made us proboscidian (possessing a trunk like that of an elephant), how would an expensive suit look with this appearance?

Ponder what a favor from the free favors of the Omniscient and Wise, Disclosed and Undisclosed, the Almighty God, is our blessed appearance.

"We have indeed crated man in the best of molds."⁹

If the teeth did not possess this peculiar nervous sensitivity and cleverness, how many pieces of stone we would be chewing on while eating, although doctors say there are no nerves in bone?

If God Almighty had created human teeth out of one bone piece –

First, what would have happened to the beauty of the mouth with its teeth? Second, we would be compelled to remove that one piece of bone if ever we felt a toothache. Then what would have happened and what difficulty would we be facing? Pulling out of the lower or upper jaws is not a simple task.

If Almighty God had given man a beak like that of a bird instead of a mouth, so we would not be able to eat anything but grain, then what would have happened? What suffering we would face, if we ever ate?

If after putting food in our mouths, we had to push our jaws up and down by means of our hands, how difficult it would have been and what would have happened?

What if Almighty God had not given the tongue two peculiar eyes and unique sensitive perception to be used during the chewing process to take the morsels from the left to the right and push them under the molar teeth, placing them there? It does not do this job just once, but repeats every time we chew. It collects food from around the mouth, and takes it to be chewed under the molars and other teeth. Reflect upon this perfect order of creation in each organ, could it ever be possible without a Prudent Artificer? No, never.

If the tongue were not operative with awoken, fully vigilant "eyes" in the cave of the mouth, its half would be somewhat injured and come under the teeth every time we ate. We would have to perform this task with our fingers, provided they are in the mouth during chewing; hence they would be injured during the first or second attempt.

Ponder how this eyeless piece of flesh was given eyes? It does its work in the darkness of the mouth, while both right and left molar teeth are active. It avoids going beneath the teeth.

If God Almighty had not endowed man with the capability of speech and writing, what difficulty would his searching intellect have to meet? For he wished to talk and could not, or his order or command to be carried out somewhere far away but was unfamiliar with written communication. So what should he have done and how could he solve the problem, which existed far away, what would have happened then?

If food by God's command did not go down our throat automatically, we would have to push it down for each other using, for example, a skewer. Then, what would have happened? What would have been our condition?

Is this system spontaneous?

Ponder! Does the claim that creation came about by chance, or that Almighty God does not exist, have any sense except for being a wheel within the wheel, or the hands of control or power behind curtains?

If, during the descent of a morsel of food, the epiglottis¹⁰ did not automatically lock the trachea's inlet, what problems we would have been facing pertaining to a morsel reaching the stomach? Reflect on how the epiglottis in the throat is acquainted with the performance of this task. Is it still appropriate for man to consider the creation of this entire universe as coincidental, with the absence of the Almighty Creator? The answer is negative.

¹⁰ The thin elastic cartilaginous structure located at the root of the tongue that folds over the glottis to prevent food and liquid from entering the trachea during the act of swallowing.

If Almighty God had not placed the heart in the thorax, but had created it outside the thorax, with its connections with the inside of the body through arteries and veins, how impossible would it have been to save the organ from accidents and other mishaps? How would we have fared in trying to protect it?

If we had to execute the heart's pumping, pressing it constantly, what difficult a task it would have been and what would have become of us, and how would we have handled it while at work and business?

What if there was no pumping of the heart and it did not keep circulating blood throughout the body? Indeed blood would go downward after a few hours' walk, and then we would have to lift up our legs and wait a while until blood comes rushing toward the head and chest. Then what would have happened, what would we have done, and what would have been our conditions?

Ponder well! Are all these organs filled with these mysteries created spontaneously? As some say so, and deny the Almighty Great, Omnipotent and Self-Existent God.

If Almighty God had not given man, hands and fingers, then what condition we would be in now and how would we transfer things to our mouth?

Do you know that the flesh from the beginning of the nail to its end grows periodically, taking the nail from its beginning to its end forward. Then from there it subtly separates from the nail so that we do not notice it. Subsequently, it takes its reverse cycle from the end to beginning of the nail.

As an evidence to this truth, you might have observed that the beginning of the nail that has turned red or has become black after being struck, especially if it is located at the root of the nail. After a short while, approximately six months the black spot has gradually risen reaching the end of the nail.

Hence, we must ponder that if the nail were to slip over the flesh and come forward, naturally underneath the nail having the most delicate sensitivity to pain, indeed we would feel an intense discomfort or at least notice the separation of nail and flesh. No pain, or processing related to this action, is, however, noticeable to us. These processes well convey that the flesh underneath the nail is circulating along with the nail letting the nail reach the end and then it takes the reverse cycle towards the beginning of the nail. Therefore, a piece of flesh from the finger side, if separated and left behind from the flowing process, aches. It bothers us and makes us feel uncomfortable unless we cut it.

The School of Faith and the Death of Satan

It is here that we clearly remind all humanity, in general, and those attending the militant¹¹ school, in particular, of the thanksgiving for best countenance that Almighty God has bestowed upon us the position of vicegerency,¹² nobility,¹³ intelligence and control. Making our best efforts, we unremittently acquiesce to God's commands and endeavor to serve God's creatures for the purpose of extending justice, worshipping in His Oneness and spreading all this to others. This is called the theory and practice of thanksgiving.

But let us leave this general conception for a while and focus on what Almighty God says:

¹¹ militant: the struggle against ego and Satan

¹² Khelafah, vicegerency: The position, function, or authority of a vicegerent

¹³ Karamah

"If you are grateful for my favor, there will an increase on your favors. And if you show ingratitude towards favors, verily My punishment is severe."¹⁴

Indeed, an abundance of inward and outward favors will be accessible to us once we see the worthless position that we were in originally and initially, and do thanksgiving for those favors that have been given to us. As they say, "You can appreciate good health when you remember all the problems one by one."

On that basis, I would like, in the series of topics concerning the authenticity here implied, to turn respected readers' attention to some of the commonplace favors and beneficence that Exalted Almighty has granted mankind. This topic is handled in such a way that you yourself might perceive with human and realistic logic the thanksgiving owed as a result of such bounty and beneficence. And on the other hand, also come to understand that when some narrow-minded materialists say that Almighty God does not exist, they mean that this system of the universe has come into existence spontaneously, without Regulator and Creator.

Of course, an examination of a number of well-ordered objects and the regulated organizations, each of which itself signifies His Self-Subsisting¹⁵ and Omniscient Power, the Generous¹⁶ and Wise,¹⁷ conveys to us that it is not by coincidence, but by proper and careful measurement they were created and arranged. This order is not only evident in our firmament, but beyond as well. Each unit of this order is itself a distinguished manifestation of the manifestations of the Perfect Power of His Wise and Beneficent Being. It is observed that they each are distinguished with particular forms, shapes and secrets. Observing their distinct qualities is demonstrative of the Performances of Self-existent, the Glorious Being. Yet when it comes to articulating the Greatness, Magnificence and Perfection of Exalted Him we have not even the words representative of real attributes and illustrative of true meaning. We use some words, like Perfection, Glory, Greatness and Magnificence; along with other slightly different words; but what else? Is it possible, through these restricted words, to express the manifestation of Greatness and Performances of the Almighty Magnificent Being?

No, never!

¹⁴ Quran Chapter 14 Ibraahim (the Prophet Abraham), verse 7

¹⁵ Qayyum

¹⁷ Hakeem

Nevertheless, aside the fact that our brain does not have, the substantial capability for perceiving and talent for understanding the intelligence behind the secrets and mysteries of created things, but as soon as people see something and understand a little bit, they have lost themselves. Not known the Maker, they have jumped on to denying the Existence of the Almighty. Although claiming to possess knowledge, most of them have fallen into the pits of despair, and due to utmost narrow-mindedness and limited vision, denied the Existence of the Creator and Organizer of this entire universe.

Seeing all this stupendous Order and Glory, in which we have not perceived yet even one thousandth of our firmament or our insignificant globe, with so little knowledge of physics and chemistry, surprisingly, they think themselves somehow possessing genius. Some, in practice, unconsciously portray themselves as lords over these veiled secrets and make themselves the leaders of the deviators. And, with the worthless knowledge they acquired, they assume they understand everything, or they could know, and find His Great Glorious Being just as soon as learning to read and write. This is an error.

Sure! A relationship with the Almighty is not impossible. We must realize that one's approach to the Presence of Almighty Being, who is absolutely unseen, is possible by means of fortification of spiritual power via one's complete faith in His Self-reliant Being.

Notice that the soul is intangible, however its living signs and activities in the body are apparent until death. Yet the soul can bring us toward our goal of approaching and finding the Almighty.

The seekers of this approach, instead of fortifying spiritual power, have grown by fortifying egotistical powers and that through cruel and unlawful means. They want to reach Proximity with Him, the Self-reliant Being, by means of dishonor, but how?

Hence, instead of meeting reality, they are confronted with aberration and disappointment. The reasons for all these failures and the tendency of some philosophers to go astray are indispensably explained, with Glorious God's assistance, in a separate epistle "Why do philosophers go astray before reaching guidance."

Thus, on account of satanic temptations, they have produced some written and verbal literature, even films that reflect their atheistic views. They have inadvertently driven a portion of the people to the dungeons of misery and deviation with completely meaningless and unfounded words.

Consequently instead of seeking the comfort of mankind, in fact they have focused on producing deadly mass-murder atomic bombs, the arms race, and finally destroying all living creatures and buildings on earth. They have driven mankind, along with all living creatures, to the brink of death.

Now, it is the duty of enlightened Muslims that, once they perceive the truth, they are among the students of the Militant Institute of Monotheism, the Oneness of Almighty God. There they should provide others with the necessary contentment of logical reason and open their minds to the Light of Islam and faith, and to pull humanity, with the help of Almighty God, out of this wilderness of insanity.

Thus, they must primarily get a good understanding, so they may be able explain to others. We have, with His special assistance and cooperation of our sound companions, organized the dictation of these topics in simple form of epistles in the School of Quran and its Secrets, as far as Almighty God has gracefully guided us with His Kindness and Generosity. Hopefully if any more of these matters are reflected upon by the faithful majesties, they should write them down and place them in the service of all Muslims and mankind.

I would not like to open the discussion with their senseless matters because this will delay explaining the spirit of the matter, which we intend to do. Simply, we are drawing the attention of the broad-minded to the following points. You, yourself, will freely judge what you see, studying it accurately and making your judgement of whether these brothers and sisters have committed an error. How, with such irrational and illogical morality, they have deprived themselves from finding out about the truth pertaining to the Permanent and Everlasting World, as well as both worlds' real abode-of-favors, that is Paradise, following the human and jinni devils?

Why don't they ponder! The God Who created man from non-existence, could He not recreate him anew? And that Being Who brought forth all these Favors from the earth or soil, could He not draw thousands times better pleasures from a soil of better quality? Or the Self-subsisting, Who creates many pleasant seasons of spring and summer, could He not keep them for all time? Likewise, the Great Praiseworthy who grants man twenty to thirty years of youth, could He not everlastingly maintain it?

The answer to all these queries is affirmative, the believers are duty-bound in suggesting and proving them.

If Glorious God had not properly organized this machine of filtration of food and its adaptation to the blood in our bodies, and that out of a wide range of fatty, sugary and protein foodstuff—and if He had not caused this caravan carrying many constituents called blood—how could the body's wasted cells be restored?

Consider such a waste of molecules, as would be the case with limbs were we presumably to inject somehow into them, ourselves, the necessary elements. Could we have fulfilled this task as well as caused by the circulation of blood carrying its stupendous loads, which can do it for every part of the body very skillfully by the command from Almighty God? No, never!

If Almighty God had not automatically processed the filtration and separation of the residual liquid from the stomach using the kidney and this job had depended somehow on us, what would have happened? Think about it!

If the food in our stomachs had to be moved by us in a similar manner to the way the stomach now does by providing automatically the necessary pressure for four hours—expansion and contraction, what trouble it all would have been to us! Ponder!

If Glorious God had prepared man's stomach for digestion of only soft things like corn bread, or some other simple substances and man could not digest any of God's other favors to him, how could we ever now utilize all the countless favors?

If God Almighty had not specially prepared man for the air in his intestine, the gaseous substances produced after the ingestion of different foodstuff and meals, in spite of the fact that the main attribute of gasses, especially when heated up, is to rise. Were these smelly gases from the intestine, in accordance with this attribute, to go upward and exit from the mouth, what would be our present situation? Think about it! Contrary to its chemical property, it goes down to exit.

If both ends, front and back, were not automatically opened and closed, what would have been our situation? I should be more blunt and say that each person would have required a bag or a box on each side in which to collect the waste material and discharge somewhere at the convenient times.

Has this order been organized without an Organizer? No, never!

What kind of a place would we have had to set at home? Plainly speaking, we would have required particular seats beneath which to place containers. While sitting and talking, this waste material from both front and back would drop in these containers little by little. What a situation then would our home and we have been? Think about it!

If the feces and urine, when necessary, were not automatically relieved through their proper outlets, and it were necessary that someone press our stomach so the waste material could come out, what would have been our situation under that circumstance? Or, if taking it out manually or by some other means, what would have been our lot? Pay heed!

If Almighty God had caused man to be constipated, or even have his urine flow stultified one or several days a week, several weeks a month, or even a few months a year, what would our situation have been and what would we have done? That is to say, the front and back outlets were blocked what difficulties we would have confronted?

If Almighty God had given man a long tail and that out of a bone piece, such that it would have been impossible to bend what would have happened then? How could we fit it in our trousers and how could we sit on it? But where is the superiority of man over the creatures possessing that figure, if it were not for the Fervors and Grace bestowed upon us by the Almighty.

If Glorious God had given man such big fat as sheep,¹⁸ ponder what would have been our situation? Ponder, after all, whether the creation of these forms is impossible? No, never. Based on what merit were we honored with, "We have indeed created man in the best of molds."¹⁹ We were made worthy of this wealth and created with grace!

If Glorious God had not equipped the bones' equilibrium and the strength in proportion with the weight associated? That is to say that if the inferior part of the foot, the anklebone, were not stronger and more powerful than the rest, and thus incapable of supporting a weight of 70 to 105kg, how quickly would bone tissue be pulverized and man prevented from walking?

¹⁹ Quran Chapter 95 Teen (the Fig), verse 4

What if Glorious God had not created the knee bones, waist, and the rest with the necessary hierarchical strength and in conformity with the requirements of equilibrium; in such a case, bones would be pulverized every day, week, or at least once a month? What difficulty were we to be confronted with such a problem! Is the power of equilibrium in the joints supporting the body there by chance and without measurement? No, never!

Ponder profoundly about how such order in our bodies, and in those of all creatures, even the atomic particles, could have or would come into existence without the Prudent, Great Creator? No, it could never. The problem of not seeing God would not be cured through misconception, but only will get worse.

If Glorious God had not given to human beings the orderly, correctly numbered, and good fingers we have, but something similar to what animals have—perhaps hoofs, what would our situation have then been? Ponder!

If Almighty God had processed the lengthening of our bones through us pulling them at appropriate times; how could we ever fulfill this task?

If our arms and legs were sometimes to stretch due to our manual intervention or from their own natural state, so that we would not be able to bring them back to their normal position? What would we have done under such circumstances? What difficulty we would have to face!

If there were no place inside the bones for marrow, or other necessary ‘fatty’ substances, how long would the bones be able to supply it? It would only be for a short while, and quantitatively very little. Ponder! Is the supplying of oil in the joints an accident, or a function without wisdom?

No, never!

If we had to somewhat provide the oil inside the bones, with all the forgetfulness of mankind; first how and laboriously we would be fulfilling this task, secondly what complications we would meet with had we ever forgotten our task!

If there were no joints in our bodies, indeed, we could not bend back and forth as required. What would we have become and what could we have done?

If Almighty God had created mankind all with the same face and shape, what disorder there would have been in terms of social life! Basically, there would have been no distinctions amongst friends and strangers.

If Exalted God had not bestowed us sleep in order to restore expended energy from our bodies, do you know how quickly our bodies would become exhausted and we would be destroyed?

If Glorious God had not, with special wisdom, kept body temperature moderate and at a necessary heat level, with oxygen from the air and calories from a variety of foods, what tools would we have used to supply this temperature? That is to say, could we ourselves ever do that which the body itself is automatically, accurately undertaking with its indispensable facilities? No, never!

If you are informed, biologists have calculated that it would take approximately 35 kilograms of coal daily in order to secure the body temperature each person now normally has, were he or she to be provided with artificial heat, but how would we provide or use this in timely manner?

If Great God had paralyzed the members of the body once in more or less than twenty four hours, a week, or a month, how would man have prayed more often for recovery and worshipped in thanksgiving, always making a special effort in his appeals to show up his weaknesses?

If Glorious God had produced amongst humans a body paralysis for a week or a month, and if man had to endure this disease for the entire length, what would have been man's situation? Ponder, Almighty God would not have given motion to his limbs had he not done some exhausting worshipping. Who, in this case, would be able to oppose subservience to Him and transgress others? Indeed, all would comply, surrender absolutely and be enthusiastic to worshipping; leading a totally peaceful co-existence and very comfortable life.

If Almighty God had made domestic animals such as the horse, cow, donkey, sheep, goat, etc., domesticated for one generation and then wild again in the next, because the nature of animals requires wilderness, of what use would they have been then? As soon as we let loose the lion, wolf, fox, for example, even after ten generations domesticated, they become as wild as they once were.

If Almighty God did not make children and adults, men and women seem alike to domesticated animals, that is, they would not obey a weak person unless a strong and big person was there, how again would we utilize these animals and take the necessary advantage of the work they can do? The answer is that we could not.

If Glorious God had crated all animals with the same shape, figure and visage, then who could ever own an animal since they would all look alike and be therefore indistinguishable? Whereas, there are differences, not just in their color but on their faces and even in their voices, so that a person knows his own animals through special marks or signs.

Ponder by considering the opposite side of each of the above mentioned queries. It will become clear that, should all these situation have occurred, as the materialist says, based on spontaneity and by accident in this world, humanity would be beset by problems hundreds of times worse than the above mentioned. For processes based on spontaneity have never taken and could never take place with such order as visible in every created being.

All these truths are clearly proving the existence of His Self-Existence, Wise and Omniscient²⁰ Being, and that indeed it has taken place under this Great, Almighty Being's Control.

Utmost of Insight throughout Wisdom

It is an obvious and undeniable truth that this entire hidden and open universe, and commonplace things around us, are the outcome of the Power of the Almighty's Hand, the Architect of the Earth and Time and all the galaxies and Periods, Exalted be He. In reality He has created an exhibition out of a collection of things and a variety of tools. To demonstrate His performances, He Almighty has displayed all these colors and things on basis of wisdom and secrets. Finally, whatever is here on earth is all for man, and man is created to observe and to study the Performances of His Highness, Compassionate, and Beneficent.

The ultimate objective of worship in all its forms, beside the observation of the above-mentioned qualities and the lights acquired therefrom, is the turning point in this process in the acquisition of Insight into the Indisputable Almighty Artificer.

This wealth can best be acquired by studying the secrets of this exhibition (universe) and by perceiving the Magnificence and the Perfection of the Almighty therefrom. It is the servant's only tool for relating to and gaining Insight into Almighty God.

It is thus that most interpreters of the Quran have understood this auspicious verse:

"I have created Jinns and men that they may worship Me (to acquire Insight into Me)."²¹

Verily! They went rightly and correctly. Truly this is it.

It is therefore through an abundant variety of re-producing machines that the Almighty has created our firmament and others, of which we see only a very small portion. In quantitative terms at least, variety reaches the order of millions. In terms of quantity, quality, and wisdom that may lie there are again numerous and fundamental differences. We have grouped them, up to the position of humanity and Islam, into seven general categories in the book "World from the Telescope of the Qur'an." After publishing, the book was put to public's access, a summary is presented here -

First category: Inanimate objects like firmaments and planets. Even somehow plants, vegetables and stones may also be included in this series.

Second category: Living creatures from the microbe to the elephant, and from mosquito to the ostrich, all on land, sea, air, or in the earth are included in this series.

Third category: Mankind, whether believer or unbeliever, possessing various religions and customs, such as atheism or polytheism, etc.

Fourth category: Monotheists, especially Muslims or those adhering to the "militant"²² school.

Fifth category: Common religious scholars (Ulema).

Sixth category: The faithful, monotheistic, active religious scholars.

Seventh category: Faithful active ones and devout monotheists.

²¹ Quran Chapter 51 Zariat (the Winds that Scatter), verse 56

²² "militant," referring to the struggle against ego and Satan

"Beware that sincere devotion is reserved for God Alone."²³

All these categories have exclusive characteristics, not only different in terms of values and ethics, but also outwardly fundamental differences arise. In bodily terms and manner of creation, they are also differently organized and categorized.

Considering the first category of the above-mentioned created beings as a pre-elementary school, the second elementary, the third secondary, and the fourth university, we conclude that mankind is generally created through His grace and favor in the secondary school.

Mankind ought to have been in total submission to the Creator of this entire universe and the Bestower of open and hidden bestowments in thanksgiving for all control granted to us.

Secondly, the students at the militant school, namely the followers of the generous Qur'an, are duty-bound to collect a variety of arguments for the Oneness of Almighty Self-existent based on the 2,500 evidences of explicit verses of the Holy Qur'an. That is to well understand His Oneness and with other scientific topics and refined logic, to add reasons proving the Existence of Unique God. They should have, theoretically and practically, pulled humanity to a world of sincerity and unity. Indeed, there would never have been an opportunity for today's insanity to progress.

Now it is my duty and your own, O faithful youth, to be determined to eradicate misery, with the help of the Almighty God, and to guide the Muslims and all humanity to the right and righteous path.

If God Almighty through His Omnipotence had not given to the weak body of seeds, such as wheat, oatmeal and the like, the efficient energy to find their ways up from underneath the earth and even hard stones after cultivation. What if we human beings had to assume this function ourselves? After a few days of cultivation, we would have to soften the earth and prepare it for the stem growing out of the grain. How difficult this would be and how great the waste of grains?

Yet who would ever be able to fulfill this task? Indeed, no one!

If Almighty God had not placed at man's disposal, the materials produced through the cultivation of cotton, or the wool of sheep and goats, out of what would the costumes and dress of most modern peoples have been shaped? Sure! It would either be the skin of animals or we would have remained naked like the rest of wild or domestic animals.

What if Almighty God had not planned the ripening of fruits through sunlight and favorite air as well as the currently ordered fashion, and He had assigned unto us their ripening in the branches through artificial temperature? Who would then be able to fulfill it and in what exhaustive and frustrating manner? Pay deep attention! Can these fruits of perfect taste, varied colors and distinct characteristics ever be the scope of some "wisdom" of inanimate nature or coincident creation? The answer is negative.

If Almighty God had not produced variety of fruit-bearing and fruitless trees out of earth, what resources would have so simply provided and sufficed our needs for building high-rises, furniture, doors, or other wooden tools and necessities? Yet it would not be outlandish to ponder that wood is a condensed form of the earth's material fashioned by Almighty's Hand. But have you not observed that termites that eat the wood from one end? And at the other end, what is left—pure earth.

If Almighty God had allowed plants to grow only through our pulling them, not in the automated and indispensable manner that they are observed today, man would indeed have to pull on each plant, on necessary occasions, according to his estimation or experience, to let them grow. How difficult a task this would have been! And would we have succeeded?

If Almighty God had not organized in an automated fashion, the trees to absorb water from the earth by means of their capillary and roots? The water absorbed thus mixes well with necessary acidic and basic elements. Extraordinarily, these are taken upwards to the branches, sub-branches and leaves. Based on crucial perception and organization, they are well, automatically distributed to each part of the plant (its branches, sub-branches, leaves, fruits, flowers and other products of the tree) in correct proportion. Was it left for us to push water, containing nutrients, to the trunk, branches and leaves of the tree, what a situation would it have been and how would we have accomplished this task?

²³ Quran Chapter 39 Zumar (Crowds), verse 3

If Almighty God had not automatically maintained the trees fresh and green, we had to manually pour water on trunk and each branch to keep it fresh? Ponder, what an exhaustive task it would have been and how would we ever fulfil it?

What if Almighty God had made it our duty to shape the edges and various forms of flowers, leaves, etc., for the purpose of growth and beauty? Who would have ever been able to fashion the leaf with all its beauty and what extents would the hardship have reached! If Almighty God had left it for us to protect, pay attention or, in whatever ways, to look after blossoms as each one appeared, implying that we would have to see it to the end that the tree bore fruit, without looking after the blossom, it would simply drop. How many blossoms would a person be able to look after in a tree? Ponder! How could the free, enormous annual harvests be possible with this or other difficulties?

If Almighty God were to enjoin upon man the task of preparing the trees' and plants' immediate environment as well, how could man accomplish this task for a period of years?

If the fruit or vegetables of plants bearing such fruits as melon, watermelon, or vegetables as pumpkin and the like needed to be watched over their shapes after blooming, but were neglected? First of all, they would not be round, and secondly they would fall apart by themselves, thereby serving no use at all. What in this case would have been man's precise duties and how would he have fared with all the difficulties? And if, on the other hand, someone were to lend a hand to mankind removing of him one of these hardships, think of how appreciative he would be to him. Man would have taken it as a sort of miracle, every time he was helped in his effort to resolve any of these hardships and would be grateful to his compassion till the day of the Hereafter.

Now Great God has prepared all our affairs properly, automatically, without any hardship and, and provides it for us after only a little effort. Is it appropriate that, instead of thanksgiving and seeking deeper Insight into (or Acquaintance with) the Glorious Unique One Being, to contrarily oppose and even deny Exalted Him altogether? Is not the servant deserving of the penalty should he transgress in return for all these favors, failing to be truthful to His Real Beneficence?

The answer is affirmative.

If Almighty God had enjoined upon man the task of preparing a suitable underground environment for products such as potatoes, turnips, radishes, carrots and the like how would he prepare the environment for each of these objects? How would he manage the space underground, and how much room would he recognize would be dynamically required?

How many times would he be required to work for each plant from the beginning of its growth to the end of its life term?

If Almighty God had not caused the earth and other materials needed for house construction to be humid and adhesive by means of water, would all these walls and buildings be built? How would man be able to build a place for his habitation?

If Almighty God had made mountains out of single pieces of unbreakable stone, how would the children of mankind make use of them or make paths for travel and other uses?

If Almighty God had not made the mountains a reservoir of water and snow in winter, would we have water in summer and fall? What would people have done?

If Almighty God had not created intact veins of metals and minerals in the earth's womb, the most beautiful suits of luxurious, modern people should then have been sewed with the thistle of deserts, or otherwise how?

In simple form we have, thus far, brought up the smallest representation of the values of Almighty Supreme's creatures. If one pays attention, it will be clearly understood that Almighty God has supplied all necessities of comfortable life for mankind in this small abode (the world). Almighty God has allowed man to make use of them with little effort through the searching intellect as an occupation for him. That is to see whether man, while being engaged with these products, will forget or remember the Almighty Creator of all creatures.

"We may test whichever of you is doing the best of deeds."²⁴

Or by observing all these Favors and Beneficence, you may tend further to Almighty God; furthermore, you may endeavor to achieve as best relationship with and acquire insight into the Almighty as possible through financial, bodily, and verbal services.

If Almighty God had not caused the rivers to initially flow in the directions which you see today, and were the mountains stable obstacles before them, in what way could mankind ever shape them in their present forms? How would they ever succeed making the rivers' trajectories?

If Almighty God had not created underneath the earth's crust an impenetrable level for water, how could all these rivers and oceans remain so firmly settled on the face of the earth, since earth has the natural quality of absorbing water and other fluids?

If Almighty God had not given the earth an incapable absorption characteristic vis-a-vis fluids contained within it, such as petroleum, oil, and other combustibles, how could all these billions of barrels be daily extracted? Yet the earth does not absorb, but has preserves them. What would have otherwise been our contemporary people's circumstances?

Ponder! Could this task and other characteristics be inherent properties of the soil, a performance of an unintelligent being such as earth or secrets and wisdom of the Creator and Artificer, the Cherisher and Sustainer of the worlds? Reflect profoundly!

If Exalted God created the mouths of volcanoes, within the earth, converged with the mines of petroleum, oil, and other greasy fluids and gas and had not created the barrier "for beneath them is a barrier which they do not transgress"²⁵ in between, what would have been earth's situation otherwise? As on the ultimate stage of earth's annihilation, these two factors will collide with one another and the earth, by God's leave, will be shattered into many pieces. Almighty God has stated:

"One day the earth will be changed to a different earth..."²⁶

This is the major resurrection and all human children will be brought together in that desert.

If Almighty God had not kept the water of the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans salty, would it have been possible to live on earth with the fetid smell? The answer is no.

²⁴ Quran Chapter 67 Mulk (the Dominion), verse 2

²⁵ Quran Chapter 14 Ibrahim (the Prophet Abraham), 48 Quran)

Who else but the Self-Existent Almighty God places all these salts and other disinfecting compounds therein, in accurate measures? But could any sound intellect accept that all these performances are carried out spontaneously, without the Wise, Great Artificer? No never! If Almighty God had not made salty water from the oceans sweet through evaporation namely filtering of the air and clouds, how could the salty water be recycled as rain or sown? Some people may argue on filtering it. Correct! Water filters are available now, but how would earlier peoples handled it; and how would plants have fared then in their growth process when water is a dominant element for animal and plant life on this earth?

What if Almighty God had not increased the level of coldness in winter in the right measure or had not created the two giant freezers at both poles of the earth, by means of which, most of the microbes would die or at least be contained? How, then would living creatures lives be, particularly humans?

If Almighty God had not intensified the heat at the equator and also in most countries during the summer season, so that besides the growth and maturing of the fruit tress, plants, crops, animals, microbes, too would die. What would the situation of human beings be then under such circumstances?

Reflect, some ignorant ones say, this Great, Unique Being, possessing all these Performances, Attributes and Glory, does not exist and that unworthy matter has spontaneously created all these phenomena in this perfect order. We seek refuge in God!

If Almighty God had not occasionally sent tropical rains in the hot areas, how then would life have been possible with intense heat?

If Almighty God had not sent the rain from above, to destroy the dust, smoke, dirt, and pollution, which have condensed in the air, where would we ever have a comfortable and nontoxic life, in particular in our time, with all the burning of fuels in machines and factories? How Wise and Omniscient is the Glorious Supreme Being Who knew and has wisely placed everything appropriately.

“The world is like an eye, a beard, a spot of beauty and eyebrow, Where each thing is neatly in place” Hafiz

²⁶ Quran Chapter 14 Ibrahim (the Prophet Abraham), verse 48

If Almighty God had kept the sun away from the earth for a while, what would have been man's situation in those years and how would he have lived?

If Almighty God had not given the sun the necessary, appropriate heat, how would we, residents of the earth, live? How would we have arranged to have necessary heat on our planet? By means of what capability and how difficult could we have accomplished this task?

If Almighty God had made sun scarcity as well as the rain and snow scarcity as drought, what would have happened then, and what would man have done?

What if Almighty God did not keep and hold firmly the present distance between the sun and the earth, while the sun, and all the planets belonging to our firmament, are moving towards an unknown ultimate destination travelling approximately millions of miles daily.

"The sun is traveling through a path towards a stationary point. This is the measurement of Wise and all-Knowing God."²⁷

Despite the enormous speeds in our solar system, distances are very precisely preserved and kept in proper order. There are no collisions among the globes and systems in galaxies with one another, despite their incredible rotational and revolutionary motions that they are compelled to undergo; neither do they come apart. Is this process an outcome of coincidence, coming into existence by itself? Can all these unintelligent celestial bodies ever execute these properly ordered motions by themselves?

Deliberately and attentively ponder, so you may find that the denial of Almighty God is like the denial of the existence of sun by a blind bat, metaphorically speaking, from the perspective of some people, but it is thousands of times more ignorant.

If Exalted God had brought either the sun or the earth, sometime, just a little closer to the other, what would have been man's situation? Who could then survive? How would life be sustained?

If Exalted God had not sent down the rain, snow, and hail in small drops, little by little, but had spilled at once the frozen clouds as mountains of water, snow or hail, who or what could have survived on the earth's surface under such circumstances? Which building could remain and which tree could survive unscathed?

Could all this precisely ordered organization be spontaneous and coincidental? Is it possible without a Creator—the Great, Unique Organizer? No, never!

Dear Honorable Readers!

In this epistle we drew, with the help of Almighty God, your attention to commonplace phenomena. Pursuing this, the clear-sighted among our readers may then look around and find more secrets and mysteries. Subsequently, you might forward your observations to myself or to our scientific intellectual committee so that later this will be added to this epistles under your own name.

The spirit of this work was principally threefold:

First - One hour study of this kind of literature and the search for the truth pertaining to Greatness, Perfection and Glory of the Exalted Creator is equivalent to sixty years of accepted worship, according to the sincere reporter, peace and blessings of God be upon him; and a minute of it is equivalent to a year.

Second - Intelligent thanksgiving for the favors is achieved after true realization of their achievement. Pondering on these issues will cause an increase in the light of faith and a fortification of spiritual power. It is the only tool for discovering the secrets of the unseen, Fourth Dimension.

Third - It is manifestly evident, and attesting, that each of these topics is testimony for the existence of the Great and Omniscient Artifice, the Merciful and Generous God. Undoubtedly this entire order has taken effect on the basis of Previous Arrangement and Perfect, Excellent Plan of the Supreme Organization. It has never been a coincident. Nature possesses no power to create anything by itself. Rather, this entire universe or nature is the outcome of His Imperceptible, Great, Imperishable, Eternal, Endless, and Powerful Hand.

But deceptive unbelievers who, for the purpose of further expanding imperialistic plans, call the creation of the universe coincidence, indulge in nothing more than absolute speculation, clear falsehoods, and pure ignorance.

Sure, the propagation of such an ideology has been of two basic matters below:

1. Retrospectively, new colonizers have experienced the inhumane and repressive behavior of their largest preceding colonizers of the world (Britain and others) vis-à-vis oppressed people during hundreds of years in colonized countries. Colonizers witnessed that, as soon as the oppressed tribe or nation rose to power, they drove out the colonizers in a most humiliating way. These new colonizers have consequently given a number of reasons for the conflict, found merely on principles of faith, culture, tradition, chastity, honor, and fatherland, born in religion. As a result, prior to expanding their colonization efforts and stabilizing their dominion and leadership over the oppressed peoples and nations, they portray themselves under the banner of atheism, agnosticism and the denial of the Unique Exalted Artificer's Existence, in order to destroy all religious principles. They first impel the youth, already wary of lifeless religions into "reckless obscenities and wanton behavior." By means of these deceits, they attract and have attracted them, where exists an evident second objective.
2. To defeat the undeveloped countries, by using their own people, is the best method. This method works best by luring the unaware among the youth. They intoxicate the youth that are the investment of their oppressed nations, with "quickly gratifying acts of obscenity." Covertly, behind a disguise of their heedless rulers, they plot "revolutions" such as, Bukhara, East Germany, Gorgestan, Poland and Czechechoslovakia, etc. From these various colonizing conspiracies in the course of hundreds of years, nothing has been and will be extracted from the minds and brains of the earlier and contemporary “intellectuals” but disaster, genocide, expansion, and, at most, domination over people.

Now that we have entered the particular atomic age, the greatest countries are rushing into an awesome arms race instead of towards peace for man, which cannot be called by any other name but insanity!

Sure! We shall lead and guide, these insane ones, who claim to be perfect, to the path of guidance and insight into God, through the sound leadership of the intact Qur’an of Islam and the efforts of instructors of the University of Insight Into God, with help of Great, Magnificent God, to a Worldly Flood of Mercy, as opposed to the Wrathful period of the Prophet Noah, peace and blessings of God be upon him.

-WITH THE GRACE OF GOD ALMIGHTY-
